The Unlikely Driver

A woman is driving recklessly on the road. She looks so innocent...until she gets behind the wheel of that SUV and those sunglasses. Now she's invincible.

She has no problem pulling up to your bumper to move you along. It doesn't matter that the speed limit is 25 miles per hour around that curvy road. She's on a mission.

And don't give her no guff about running you off the road. She will let you know that she's privileged. She's got it like that.

You will lose if you take her to court. She doesn't look the part. It couldn't have been her. She puts on that innocent face and looks like a school mom dropping her kids off. All the while she's a closet Karen waiting to pounce.

You know her. That's my coworker. No, she's the next-door neighbor. Oh, that's Aunt Betty. Nah man, that's my mom.

